Item B

The American sociologist Albert Cohen described crimes committed by the members of delinquent subcultures as typically:

- Non-utilitarian – these crimes were not committed because the individuals involved had a need for something.
- Malicious – these crimes were committed in order to cause discomfort to others.
- Negativistic – the members of delinquent subcultures took the norms of society and turned them on their head.

Item C

Based on data from a number of secondary sources a report from the Boston Consulting Group and the Sutton Trust identified the following obstacles to social mobility:

- Limited prospects for the future. The report concluded that individuals who become adults in the early 21st century are likely to be the first generation in modern times to earn less than their parents.
- Attendance at University. The report concluded that students from lower socio-economic backgrounds are still far less likely to attend university than students from higher socio-economic backgrounds.
- Graduate earning potential. The report concluded that even when less well-off students have attended the same university and studied the same subject as their wealthier peers they earn over 10% less per year.
